New Screen Magazine

No. 98

NEW YORK is positively beautiful at night with its myriads of lights playing up the tall buildings that throng its sky line.

Dai Buell, famous concert pianist, holds the record for a low gown, not in cut, but price. She exhibits an attractive dress which cost her exactly 73 cents to make.

A flea we seldom see is the water flea "entomostraca." We drink these by the thousands and one drop of water gives them plenty of room to splash around in. However, they are harmless.

In this issue of the magazine there is a charming little girl who does some delightful and difficult dances. A snake dance is particularly fascinating, and the grown-up vamps had better look to their laurels.

There is an animated by Pat Sullivan entitled "Sammie White Presents Hissself in 'Honey, Where Are You?'"
